SUNDAY MORNING, SEPT. 14.

Some one said that Ingalls was not giving Martin that hearty support which was expected of him. It was the usual Democratic campaign lie, unworthy of notice. At the grand demonstration at Topeka night before last, when Martin, Iugalls, and many others made brief speeches, Mr. Ingalls said, on opening his speech, that he was present by invitation of the Blaine and Logan club to abvocate the election of James G. Blaine and John
A. Logan. He was present to advo1864, and which increased the power cate the election of John A. Martin and all his associates on the Republican ticket. He had knewn Col. John A. Martin ever since he was a briefless barrister in a little frontier, borderruffian town, and knew him to be one against the passage of the supplement
